Clemmons' Lenny Owens Named APWA's Fleet Technician of the Year

Clemmons, North Carolina – Lenny Owens, Equipment Services Mechanic for the Village of Clemmons was named American Public Works Association's Fleet Technician of the Year for the NC Chapter, Village Manager Larry Kirby announced Monday.

The H.W. Kueffner Award is presented annually by the North Carolina Chapter to recognize an individual for outstanding achievement in local government service. Each nominee must be endorsed by two or more Municipal Officials either elected, appointed or hired.

Owens came to the Village of Clemmons with a variety of skills ranging from large truck maintenance to small equipment repairs. Owens has always been a strong advocate for continuing education, attending numerous informational and instructional courses. He is described as a team player, always supporting staff and assuring his work is performed in a timely manner, often working late or arriving early.

"We are lucky to have someone with such a strong work ethic and wide ranging skills. Owens is an exemplary employee that always goes above and beyond the call of duty. He truly demonstrates his dedication to the Village, his career, and colleagues on a daily basis," stated Kirby.
